

If disaster were to strike today, would you have a plan to save yourself and your animals?

World Animal Protection is urging all pet owners to plan for their pets in a disaster now at protectyourpet.org.nz

This website includes free downloadable disaster packs providing practical advice for dogs, cats, small animals (rats, mice and guinea pigs), rabbits, fish, horses and Assistance/Guide Dogs, in a disaster.

By making a disaster plan for your family pet, your pet may actually end up saving your life; as you and your pet will be well prepared to evacuate fast or stay put, with sufficient supplies when a disaster strikes.

A plan will help stop delays or panicked wrong decisions that could end up putting your lives and others at risk.

In a disaster, things happen quickly and without warning. The right time to make a disaster plan is now – before you and your pet could potentially lose each other, forever.
